Let's Start!

I wouldn't have done it like that!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What are some movies that you think could have been really good if only they were done differently?
- What would you change about them?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about events and experiences related to jobs.
- I can discuss hypothetical situations in the past.
- I can participate in interviews.

Let's Explore!

I'm feeling extremely confident about tonight's game.

* "Extremely" means very.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Bianca: Sorry, I was super busy the other day. I could have come over after nine, but I thought it was too late. I should have called earlier in the day.
- Kristi: It's ok.
- Bianca: So how did the interview go?
- Kristi: It went really well. I think I hit it out of the park!
- Bianca: Fantastic! You didn't get nervous?
- Kristi: Nope. I was well prepared and was able to answer all his questions clearly and concisely and I had a secret weapon.
- Bianca: What was that?
- Kristi: Well, I got there early and I sat right next to the interview room door ... and I could hear everything.
- Bianca: Wow!
- Kristi: I listened to another candidate being interviewed.
- Bianca: Did it help?
- Kristi: It helped me so much! I sat there and critiqued that person's interview. I thought she should have said this and she could have answered that.
- Bianca: Oh yeah? Give me an example.
- Kristi: Well, this woman responded to a basic polite greeting in an extremely informal manner. She should have been much more formal and she shouldn't have talked so much.
- Bianca: What did she say?
- Kristi: She answered a simple how are you question with her life story. She could have just responded with, "Fine thank you" or she could have asked the interviewer how he was. I think it turned the interviewer off right out of the gate.
- Bianca: Well, that should have made you feel quite confident.
- Kristi: Extremely!
- Bianca: So what's the next step in the interview process?
- Kristi: Well, they will contact me before 3:00 p.m. Friday.
- Bianca: Are you going to send a thank you e-mail?
- Kristi: I will do that after we leave. I'm also madly researching BFP for any other information on the web. Based on my interview, I think I'm going to get this job!

Let's Practice!

Kristi talks about when she will contact BFP again.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Select all the sentences that talk about the future.

1. ___ Well, they will contact me before 3:00 p.m. Friday.
2. ___ What did they say in the interview?
3. ___ Are you going to send a thank you e-mail?
4. ___ I'm happy to finally have a job.
5. ___ I will do that after we leave.
6. ___ I'm also madly researching BFP for any other information on the web.
7. ___ When is the next time you guys meet?
8. ___ I think I'm going to get this job!

Let's Practice!

She shouldn't have done that!

Instructions: Match each sentence with its corresponding response. Write the number in front of each response.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. She should have said this and | ___ she shouldn't have talked so much. |
| 2. She should have been much more formal and | ___ she could have answered that. |
| 3. She could have just responded with, "fine, thank you" or | ___ she could have asked the interviewer how he was. |

Extension Activity

I would have done it differently!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Watch YouTube videos about bad job interviews.
- With a partner, make a list of all the faults you see.
- Write sentences using could have, would have, and should have to explain what you would have done differently.
- Present your video and report what you would have hypothetically changed to the rest of the class.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I watch a mock job interview and break down the faults in it.

I make sentences using could have, should have, and would have to explain what I would change.

I present my video and share my ideas with the rest of the class.

Target Words

- to hit it out of the park (expression): to do extremely well e.g. I think I hit it out of the park!
- to critique (verb): to analyze e.g. I sat there and critiqued this person's interview.
- right out of the gate (expression): from the beginning
e.g. I think it turned the interviewer off right out of the gate.
- concisely (adverb): in few words
e.g. I answered all his questions clearly and concisely.
- madly (adverb): as fast as possible; quickly
e.g. I'm also madly researching BFP for any other information on the web.

Learning Points

Talking Hypothetically About the Past

When you want to talk about situations in the past in a hypothetical context (not real or necessarily true), you can use the structures would have, should have and could have.

Could have (+ past participle) means that it was possible to do something at a time in the past, or you had the ability to do something, however, you did not do it.

I could have called, but I thought it was too late.

You also use could have to make a guess about something that happened in the past.

Where is Denise?

She could have been delayed downtown or she could have overslept.

Should have (+ past participle) means that you had some obligation to do something in the past, or that it may have been a good idea to do something, however, you did not do it.

Should have can express regret about something you did or did not do.

I should have prepared more. (I regret not preparing.)

She should have answered that question differently. (She didn't answer that question very well and she should have done it differently.)

You use would have (+ past participle) to refer to something you wanted to do in the past, but didn't do. This is like the third conditional, but an 'if-clause' is not used.

I would have called and invited you, but I didn't know your phone number. (I wanted to call you but I didn't know your number, so I didn't phone you.)

Examples:

- I could have come over after nine, but I thought it was too late.
- I should have called earlier in the day.
- I thought she should have said this and she could have answered that.
- She should have been much more formal and she shouldn't have talked so much.
- She could have just responded with, "Fine, thank you" or she could have asked the interviewer how he was.
- Well, that should have made you feel quite confident.

Learning Points

The Future

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future.

When you talk about things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the modal will.

For example:

Well, they will contact me before 3:00 p.m. Friday.

When you ask about intentions, you use be going to.

For example:

Based on my interview, I think I'm going to get this job!

When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.

For example:

Are you going to send a thank you e-mail?

When you talk about schedules, you use the Simple Present.

For example:

We leave at 5 tonight.

Examples:

- Well, they will contact me before 3:00 p.m. Friday.
- Are you going to send a thank you e-mail?
- I will do that after we leave.
- I'm also madly researching BFP for any other information on the web.
- Based on my interview, I think I'm going to get this job!
