Let's Start!

You got the job!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How did you feel when you got your first job?
- What happened on your first day at work or school?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about events and experiences related to jobs.
- I can discuss future plans.
- I can report what someone had previously said.

Let's Explore!

Kristi got an entry level position at a big company. She is very excited!

* An "entry level position" is the lowest level job in a company.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Boris,

Thank you for taking time from your busy schedule to talk to me about the position yesterday. Meeting you and your team was such a pleasure. I appreciate the opportunity I had to learn more about your company.

Following our conversation, I feel even more confident that the skills and experience I have are a great match for the job on offer. I am highly enthusiastic about the prospect of joining the team.

Thank you once again. I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Kristi

Kristi,

BFP is pleased to offer you the position of editorial assistant. Your skills and experience will be an ideal fit for our team. I am meeting with the CEO tomorrow and will inform him then.

As we discussed, your starting date is going to be February 8, 2016.

We are having a meeting that day at noon, so it will be a perfect time to introduce you to everyone.

The starting wage will be $50,000 per year and is paid on a weekly basis. BFP offers excellent benefits which includes vacation and sick leave.

We will discuss this in further detail upon your arrival.

Best regards,

Boris B.

Kristi: I got the job!

Bianca: Yeah! Congrats! What did they say?

Kristi: They said they thought I would be an ideal fit for the team.

Bianca: When did they say you would start?

Kristi: They said I would start on February 8th.

Bianca: What did they say you would be doing?

Kristi: They said I would be an editorial assistant.

Bianca: Nice! Did they mention how much cash you would be making?

Kristi: Boris told me it would be $50,000 to start.

Bianca: Oh. Well that's ok for an entry level position.

Kristi: They said that they had a good benefits package as well.

Bianca: Oh! I'm so excited for you!

Learning Points

Reported Speech and Questions

You use reported speech when you are saying (reporting) what other people said or asked.

When you tell people what someone has said in the past, you need to change the verb to the next past form.

For example:

Direct speech	Reported speech
Rachel: "They hired him."	She said they had hired him.
Jill: "I'm coming to lunch."	She said she was coming.
Oliver: "I already emailed them."	He said he had already emailed them.
Beth: "I can get you a job."	She told me she could get me a job.
Adam: "Where do you work now?"	He asked me where I worked now.

You have to change the pronoun if you are reporting what someone else said. Compare these two sentences. In each case the person actually said "I don't want to go."

- I said, "I don't want to go." > I said I didn't want to go.
- Bill said, "I don't want to go." > Bill said he didn't want to go.

Learning Points

Look at the chart below to see the changes in verb tense.

Direct speech	Example	Reported speech	Example
Simple Present	Gail: "She is my boss."	Simple Past	She said she was her boss.
Present Progressive	Ben: "I'm coming right now."	Past Progressive	He said he was coming right now.
Simple Past	Drew: "I had a lot of meetings last week."	Past Perfect	He said he had had a lot of meetings last week.
Present Perfect	Fiona: "We've never had such a great boss."	Past Perfect	She said they had never had such a great boss.
Past Progressive	Sam: "I was wondering where you were."	Past Perfect Progressive	He said he had been wondering where I had been.

When you want to report questions asked, the subject normally comes before the verb.
For example:

Direct: "What are you doing?"

Indirect: She asked me what I was doing.

When the question is a yes/no question, you use if or whether to report it.
For example:

Direct: Is that the report you were talking about?

Indirect: He wondered if that was the report I had been talking about.

Learning Points

Examples:

- What did they say?
They said they thought I would be an ideal fit for the team.
- When did they say you would start?
They said I would start on February 7th.
- What did they say you would be doing?
They said I would be an editorial assistant.
- Did they mention how much cash you would be making?
Boris told me it would be $42,000 to start.

Learning Points

The Future

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future and making future plans.

Will:

When you make a quick decision at the moment of speaking.
To make predictions, offers, promises.

Be going to:

When you ask about intentions and plans.

Present Continuous Tense:

When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future.

Simple Present:

When you talk about schedules.

Will	I'll be right back.
Be going to	I'm going to go to a movie tomorrow.
Present Continuous	We are having dinner tomorrow at 8 p.m.
Simple Present	The bus number 17 stops at 8 o'clock every day.

Examples:

- Your skills and experience will be an ideal fit for our team.
- I am meeting with the CEO tomorrow and will inform him then.
- As we discussed, your starting date is going to be February 8, 2016.
- We are have a meeting that day at noon, so it will be a perfect time to introduce you to everyone.
- The starting wage will be $50,000 per year and is paid on a weekly basis.
- We will discuss this in further detail upon your arrival.
