Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: Checking the job bank!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Where do you look for job listings?
- What are your favorite places to look and why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about events and experiences related to jobs.
- I can use the proper intonation of short questions, statements and question tags.
- I can ask for confirmation.

Let's Explore!

Chit-chatting with Adam.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Kristi: Whose turn is it?

Adam: It's your turn, isn't it?

Kristi: I've answered the last five questions, haven't I? I'm pretty sure it's your turn, Adam.

Adam: True.

Kristi: What's your biggest weakness?

Adam: I like to put ketchup on my eggs. I don't know. That's a trick question, isn't it?

Kristi: C'mon Adam. You are so draining! Just talk about one weakness that through training or experience you will one day turn into strength. Try it. Here's a pen.

Adam: Um. Maybe wait a bit. Your turn. What's your favorite animal?

Kristi: My favorite animals are ducks.

Adam: Why is that? They talk funny? They are always wet?

Kristi: Ducks are my favorite animals because they are calm on the surface, but underneath the water they are hustling like crazy and getting work done.

Adam: Are you drunk? That is a dreadful answer!

Kristi: What do you mean? That answer explains who I am as a person and gives a good description of who they would want as an editor assistant. It is a great answer, isn't it?

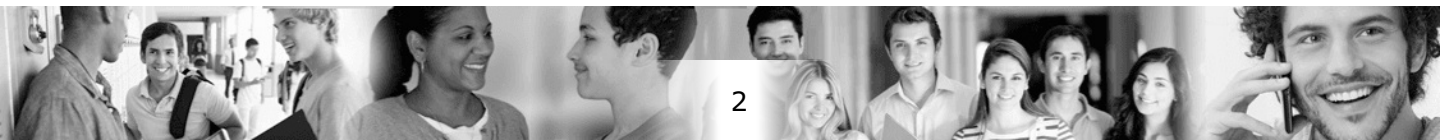

Adam: Yes, it's a good answer. I'm never going to get a job, am I?

Kristi: Adam. We have to keep drilling! You have a lot of experience interviewing, just use that experience to train yourself with for your next interview.

Adam: I'm dreading my next interview. It's such a pain, isn't it?

Kristi: Yes, it's hard, so you need to work hard to get your dream job. Since I was laid-off, I have been to seminars, workshops, read countless books and been to over ten interviews to help me prepare for this, but this time, I think I'm on track. I'm going to dazzle them at BFP. I have everything to gain.

Adam: Good. Then you can get me a job there too.

Let's Practice!

Minimal Pairs - Short e and Long a

Minimal Pairs are two words that sound similar, except for one sound.

The sounds short e and long a are quite different.

The short e sound is a relatively relaxed sound. The middle of the tongue rounds slightly upward and the sides of the tongue may lightly touch the top and bottom side teeth. The lips and jaw are loose and relaxed.

The long a is a 2-sound vowel. The tongue is pushed somewhat forward but in a neutral position in the mouth, and then, as the jaw closes slightly, the tongue moves upward until it is near the teeth. The front sides of the tongue touch the inside of the top teeth at the end of the sound.

Here are a list of minimal pairs with short e and long a sounds. As you read them, focus on the difference between the two sounds.

Short e	Long a
pen	pain
ten	train
dreading	draining
wet	wait
get	gain

Examples:

- You are so draining!
- I'm dreading my next interview.
- It's such a pain, isn't it?
- Here's a pen.
- They are always wet?
- Maybe wait a bit.
- I have been to seminars, workshops, read countless books and been to over ten interviews.
- You have a lot of experience interviewing, just use that experience to train yourself with your next interview.
- So you need to work hard to get your dream job.
- I have everything to gain.

Tag Questions

Tag questions are used to ask for clarification and confirmation.

Question tags are short questions at the end of statements.

They are used when we want to:

- confirm that something is true or not, or
- to encourage a reply from the person we are speaking to.

1. A positive statement is followed by a negative question tag. Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'yes'.

- You were working at Polygon, weren't you?
- You are looking for work, aren't you?
- She has a friend named Jack, doesn't she?
- He can use information systems, can't he?

2. A negative statement is followed by a positive question tag. Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'no'.

- You weren't working at Polygon, were you?
- You aren't looking for work, are you?
- She doesn't have a friend named Jack, does she?
- He can't use information systems, can he?

Learning Points

If the main verb is to be or a modal verb, the tag will be the same. For all other main verbs, use the tag do/does or did/didn't. Look at the examples in the chart.

Main Verb	Tag	Main Verb	Tag
He is/was	isn't/wasn't he?	She has/had	doesn't/didn't she?
You are	aren't you?	You have	don't you?
He can	can't he?	He likes	doesn't he?
We could	couldn't we?	You like	don't you?
You will	won't you?	You liked	didn't you?

Examples:

- I have answered the last five questions, haven't I?
- That's a trick question, isn't it?
- I'm never going to get a job, am I?
