Let's Start!

Preparing for a job interview!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can ask for confirmation.
- I can discuss future plans.
- I can report what someone had previously said.

Ask your partner:

- How many job interviews have you been to?
- What kinds of questions did they ask you?

Let's Explore!

Maybe one of your co-workers has a car you can borrow. You should ask around

* To "ask around" means to ask a number of people for information or advice.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Kristi: Hey, Bianca. Where have you been?
Bianca: What do you mean where have I been? I was in the bathroom washing my hands.
Kristi: Oh sorry. You didn't answer your phone.
Bianca: So, you aren't working yet, are you?
Kristi: Not yet. Next week, I'm going to go to a place called BFP for an interview and I think I like my chances there.
Bianca: BFP? That's a publishing house, isn't it?
Kristi: Yeah! You've heard of them, haven't you?
Bianca: Oh yeah. My friend Davis heard that BFP had a good standing as an up-and-coming company in the publishing world. You talked to them, didn't you?
Kristi: They sent an e-mail.
Bianca: What did they say?
Kristi: They are going to hire an editor assistant and they liked my qualifications.
Bianca: What else did the email say?
Kristi: They asked me when I could come in for an interview and I wrote back and said I could come in next week. I am going to take this week to prepare.
Bianca: If you need any help preparing, I'll help you.
Kristi: Thanks. Let's meet Thursday?
Bianca: Sounds like a plan.
Kristi: Adam is going to lend a hand as well. By the way, Adam always asks what you have been doing.
Bianca: Ughh! You guys hang out a lot, don't you?
Kristi: He's going to be interviewing for jobs soon too and he needs some practice as well. What? He's not that bad.
Bianca: Yeah. Well he's not that good either. Ask around. I will see you on Thursday though.

Let's Practice!

You aren't looking for a job, are you?

Instructions: Choose the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. So, you aren't working yet, _____?
2. That's a publishing house, _____?
3. You've heard of them, _____?
4. You talked to them, _____?
5. You guys hang out a lot, _____?

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Correct the mistake. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. My friend Davis hear that BFP had a good standing as an up-and-coming company in the publishing world.

2. The director say that they are going to hire an editor assistant.

3. They asking me when I could come in for an interview.

4. Adam always asking Krisiti about Bianca.

5. Kristi said that Adam have interviewing for jobs too.

Extension Activity

Searching for a job on the Internet!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Visit a popular employment website to search for positions.
- Put in a few keywords for jobs that you would like.
- Choose two jobs from the list of positions you have found that you would like to apply for.
- If you can't find one then create your own job.
- Make sure to choose jobs that match your skills in some way.
- The jobs do not need to be identical to the jobs you have had in the past, or to the subject you are studying at school.
- Write a paragraph for each job explaining why those jobs would match your skill set.
- Compare with a partner and give feedback.

e.g. My friend Davis heard that BFP is an up-and-coming company.
- good standing (expression): a solid or well-established position compared to others
e.g. BFP has a good standing in the publishing world.
- by the way (expression): an expression showing you are about to give an additional piece of related information e.g. By the way, Adam always asks what you have been doing.
- lend a hand (expression): help
e.g. Adam is going to lend a hand as well.

Learning Points

Tag Questions

Tag questions are used to ask for clarification and confirmation.

Tag questions are short questions that come at the end of statements.

They are used when we want to:

- confirm whether or not something is true
- to encourage a response from someone we are talking to.

1. A positive statement comes before a negative question tag. Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'yes'.

- You were stressed, weren't you?
- You are looking for work, aren't you?
- She has a degree, doesn't she?
- He can speak Spanish, can't he?

1. A negative statement comes before a positive question tag. Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'no'.

- You weren't stressed, were you?
- You aren't looking for work, are you?
- She doesn't have a degree, does she?
- He can't speak Spanish, can he?

If the main verb is to be or a modal verb, the tag will use the same verb. For the Present Perfect the tag will be the auxiliary verb have or has. For all other main verbs, use the tag do/does/don't/doesn't or did/didn't. Look at the examples in the chart.

Main Verb	Tag	Main Verb	Tag
He is/was	isn't/wasn't he?	She has/had	doesn't/didn't she?
You are	aren't you?	You have	don't you?
He can	can't he?	He likes	doesn't he?
We could	couldn't we?	You like	don't you?
You will	won't you?	You liked	didn't you?
I am	aren't I?
I have	haven't I?	She has	hasn't she?

Learning Points

Examples:

- So, you aren't working yet, are you?
- That is a publishing house, isn't it?
- You've heard of them, haven't you?
- You talked to them, didn't you?
- I'm the boss, aren't I?

Reported Speech and Questions

You use reported speech when you are saying (reporting) what other people said.

We use reported speech when we want to repeat what someone had previously said. You need to change the verb to the next past form. This is called backsliding.

For example:

Direct speech	Reported speech
Robert: "I worked there"	He said he had worked there.
Kelly: "I' m coming to lunch."	She said she was coming to lunch.
Co-workers: "We finished ."	They said they had finished.
Mark: "I can type."	He told me he could type.
Mindy: "Where do you study ?"	She asked me where I studied .

You have to change the pronoun if you are reporting what someone else said. Compare these two sentences. In each case the person actually said "I don't want to go."

- I said, "I don't want to go." > I said I didn't want to go.
- Tina said, "I don't want to go." > Tina said she didn't want to go.

When you want to report questions asked, the subject normally comes before the verb.

Example:

Direct: "Where are they?"

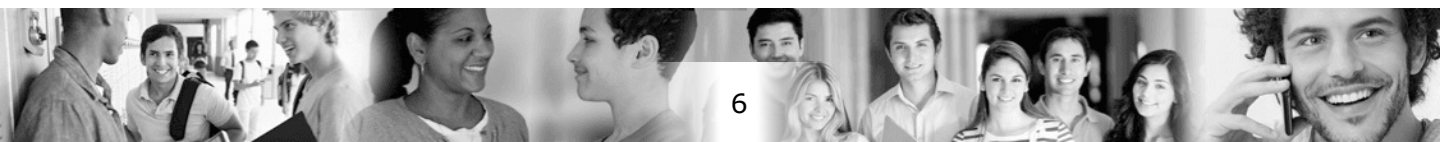

Indirect: He asked me where they were.

When the question is a yes/no question, you use if or whether to report it.

Example:

Direct: "Is that the report?"

Indirect: She asked me if that was the report.

Learning Points

Examples:

- What do you mean where have I been?
- What did they say?
- The director said that they are going to hire an editor assistant and they liked my qualifications.
- My friend Davis heard that BFP had a good standing as an up-and-coming company.
- They asked whether there was a new editor hired yet.
- The interviewer asked me when I had graduated from school.
