

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Knowing yourself!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What are your best qualities as a person?
- What job skills do you have right now?
What jobs would require these types of skills?

Can Do Statements

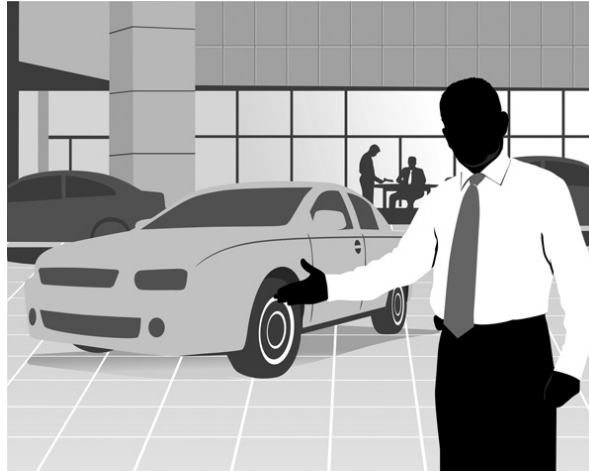

- I can discuss future plans.
- I can talk about goals and experiences related to a job.
- I can explain the steps for a job search process.

Let's Explore!

Finding a job is never easy. What to do?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Dear diary:

I have a class in an hour, so I'll have to make this short.

That job seminar has me so pumped up right now. All the things I learned there should be implemented into my job search. I think these skills will help me become more productive but first, I need a cover letter. My instructor at the seminar suggested that a cover letter didn't have to be included with your résumé. I disagreed with him, interrupting politely of course, and we debated it, but by the end, he still implied that cover letters were superfluous.

Nevertheless, I believe a cover letter has to be done and that it is a big part of the process. For me, the cover letter comes first, then the résumé and finally the interview. I feel that a cover letter gives you a chance to sell yourself and explain what you will bring to the table. The employer must be sold on your capabilities.

So today, I am going to write a cover letter, for a company I'm curious about called BFP. First, I'm going to cut to the chase, and explain why I'm writing to them. Next, the organization should be complimented. I am going to tell BFP why I like them and want to join their organization. Then, I am customizing my cover letter, explaining all the different ways that I can meet the company's objectives. Finally, in my conclusion, I will point out my enthusiasm for the position and how much I want to meet with them and just like that, I'm finished.

Oops. My class starts in five minutes. Got to go.

Let's Practice!

My future goals ...

Instructions: Proofread the sentences below. Circle the mistakes you find. Write down the correct sentences in the space provided. Remember to use the correct future tense.

1. I have a class in an hour, so I make this short.

2. I think these skills were helped me become more productive.

3. So today, I was going to write a cover letter, for a company I'm curious about called BFP.

4. I customized my cover letter explaining all the different ways that I can meet the company's objectives.

5. My class starting in five minutes.

Let's Practice!

Things to use in your job search.

Instructions: Choose the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences. Write down the modal and verb in the correct tense. The first sentence is done as an example.

1. All the things I learned there should be implemented into my job search.
2. My instructor at the seminar suggested that a cover letter didn't _____ with your resume.
3. I believe a cover letter _____ and that it is a big part of the process.
4. The employer _____ on your capabilities.
5. The organization _____ .

Work bank

- should / compliment
- have / include
- must / sell
- should / implement
- should / do

Extension Activity

Write a letter of introduction.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Make a list of skills and experiences you have.
- Make a list of jobs that your skills and experience apply to.
- Write a brief introduction about yourself and why you would be a good employee.
- Include descriptive adjectives to describe your character.
- Include your list of skills and work experience.
- The introduction should be 150 words long.
- Have a partner review your introduction using the passive modals to give feedback.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write an introductory letter.

☐ ☐

I use descriptive language to describe my skills, experiences and character.

☐ ☐

I give feedback to my partner using passive modals.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- pumped up (expression): motivated; excited
e.g. That job seminar has me so pumped up right now!
- superfluous (adjective): not necessary
e.g. The instructor implied that cover letters were superfluous.
- sell yourself (expression): convince people that you are able to do something e.g. I feel that a cover letter gives you a chance to sell yourself and explain what you will bring to the table.
- capabilities (noun): abilities; what you are capable of doing
e.g. The employer must be sold on your capabilities.
- cut to the chase (expression): go directly to the point e.g. I'm going to cut to the chase, and explain why I'm writing to them.
- objectives (noun): goals; targets
e.g. I am customizing my cover letter explaining all the different ways that I can meet the company's objectives.

Learning Points

Passive Voice with Modals

You use the passive voice when you want to focus on the receiver of the action, rather than the 'doer' of the action. You can also use modal verbs in the passive voice.

Sometimes, something must/can/should be done by someone. In that case, we use some modal verbs. Remember, after a modal verb, to is not necessary before the main verb. Example: This lesson must be practiced.

Modal verbs can add meaning connected with suggestion or obligation.

Here is the structure of a passive sentence:

Subject + modal verb + be + past participle of the main verb

For example:

All the things I learned there should be implemented into my job search.

The employer must be sold on your capabilities.

A cover letter has to be done.

They have to be sent by Tuesday.

subject	have/has/must	(to) be	past participle
A cover letter	has	to be	done.
They	have	to be	sent by Tuesday.
The employer	must	be	sold.

Examples:

- I believe a cover letter has to be done and that it is a big part of the process.
- The organization should be complimented.
- All the things I learned there should be implemented into my job search.
- My instructor at the seminar suggested that a cover letter didn't have to be included with your résumé.

Learning Points

Future Tenses

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future.

When you talk about things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the modal will.

When you ask about intentions, you use be going to.

When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.

When you talk about schedules, you use the Simple Present.

Will	I'll talk to you later.
Be going to	I am going to send out five resumes.
Present Continuous	I'm starting work on monday. I'm interviewing for a job at 2 p.m. tomorrow.
Simple Present	Class starts at 7:00 p.m.

Examples:

- I'll have to make this short.
- I am going to write a cover letter for a company I'm curious about called BFP.
- I am customizing my cover letter explaining all the different ways that I can meet the company's objectives.
- My class starts in five minutes.

